MAN'S SOCIALITY OF NATURE

His Interest in His Species Manifest, as Pointed Out by Great Scotch Philosopher.

Man's sociality of nature evinces itself in spite of all that can be said with abundant evidence by this one fact, were there no other: The unspeakable delight he takes in biography. It is written, "The proper study of mankind is man," to which study, let us candidly admit, he, by true or by false methods, applies himself, nothing loath. "Man is perennially interesting to man; nay, if we look strictly to it, there is nothing else interesting." How inexpressibly comfortable to know our fellow creature; to see into him, understand his goings forth, decipher the whole heart of his mystery; nay, not only to see into him, but even to see out of him, to view the world altogether as he views it; so that we can theoretically construe him, and could almost practically personate him; and do now thoroughly discern both what manner of man he is, and what manner of thing he has got to work on and live on!—Thomas Carlyle.

EXERCISE MUST BE KEPT UP

Youthful Athlete Can Not Afford to Allow the Years to Keep Him From It.

If you take much exercise in your early life, you must continue to take more or less exercise all through life; otherwise harmful results may follow. Any part of the body which is not used will atrophy and waste; and the muscular system is particularly liable to this degeneration. Care must be taken, also, that the lungs are used, to a certain extent, every day—because the athlete develops a large lung capacity, and if he does not use his lungs later on in life they will be liable to become diseased. It is not the fault of the exercise which brings this about, but the fault of the neglect, in after life. Keep up a few daily exercises by all means, and particularly breathing exercises. If you do this, it will not only be the means of adding to your general health, but also will add many years to your life.—Physical Culture.

WHY SILVER TARNISHES.

Everybody is familiar with the tendency of silverware to part with its brilliancy and become tarnished when exposed to ordinary atmospheric influences, but not every one knows that the cause of the tarnishing is the action of sulphur in the air. Unless frequently cleaned, the surface of silver will become black in the course of a few months. The best way to keep silver bright without the necessity of cleaning is said to be to coat the surface with a thin solution of collodion varnish diluted with spirits of wine. After being applied with a soft brush the spirit evaporates, leaving a thin, glossy, transparent film on the polished surface. Warm water removes the varnish. Tarnished silver may be restored by careful rubbing with a soft cloth wet with dilute solution of potassium cyanide, one ounce to a quart of water, followed by rinsing.—Harper's Weekly.

WALLOP FOR THE WAG.

Passing a tall building where some workmen were hoisting lumber to the roof with a windlass the Regular Wag put up his hand in mock consternation.

"Hoy, mister," he called to the foreman of the gang, "don't let that fall until I get past, will you?" The foreman looked at the Regular Wag and grinned.

"That's all right," he chuckled, "I guess it wouldn't hurt your head any."

REMINISCENT.
"Good gracious, John, had you no more sense than to take the candidate on that particular street?"

"Why should I not?"

"Didn't you know they are using a steam roller on it?"

AFTER THE HUG.

He—You smashed two cigars in my inside pocket just then!
She—That's nothing! You bent a whole package of cigarettes in my corset!—Puck.

NOT QUITE.

"You have never heard of Rousseau, I take it."
"Rousseau? Let's see? Wasn't he with the Giants in '97?"

Mrs Powell Almost Dead.

Dry Ridge, Ky.—"I could hardly walk across the room," says Mrs. Lydia Powell, of Dry Ridge, "before I tried Cardui. I was so poorly. I was almost dead. Now I can walk four miles and do my work with much more ease. I praise Cardui for my wonderful cure." Cardui is successful in benefiting sick women, because it is composed of ingredients, that act specifically on the womanly constitution, relieving headache, backache, irregularity, misery and distress. Only a good medicine could show such continual increase in popularity as Cardui has for the past 50 years. Try Cardui the woman's tonic.

OF COURSE HE WAS EXCITED

Possible Incarceration of Mother-in-Law Naturally Stirred Up Young San Francisco Man.

A San Francisco mother-in-law went to the orient and, coming back, was caught trying to smuggle in a lot of choice silks.

She had to pay duty and a fine. Then there was talk of a criminal action to follow.

Her son-in-law called on the customs officials. "Is it possible," he asked, in a severe tone, "after my mother-in-law has paid the duty on the stuff and her fine, that you contemplate criminal action?"

"We are considering it," the customs official replied gravely.

"And if my mother-in-law were to be convicted, as she probably would be, she would have to go to jail?"

"I think so."

"Do you mean to tell me you intend to do this to a woman—a woman who has already expiated her fault and recompensed the government?"

"I do; but look here, old chap, don't take this too hard. I've got to do my duty, you know. Don't feel so bad about it."

"Bad!" shouted the son-in-law. "Why, my dear sir, this is the first gleam of sunshine that has entered my home in twenty years!"—Tit Bits.

DUMMY VILLAGE AS TARGET

English Artillery Trained Their Guns on Exact Representation of Small Town.

To test the guns of the brigades of the British Royal Field Artillery, in camp on Dartmoor, Devonshire, a dummy village was specially built as target. The "village," covering twenty acres near Okehampton, was built in three weeks by artificers from the camp, whose inventive and artistic genius was allowed full scope. Seen from about a mile away, it looked like a typical English hamlet. Clustering round a church, were a number of cottages. Strips of canvas were laid through and around the village to represent roads. In the village were representations of children at play and men and women at their daily duties. Near by was a farmyard stocked with dummy cattle. And to complete the scene, there was the village inn.

The buildings were made chiefly of canvas, roofed with corrugated iron and stones taken from the hillsides. It was about 6,000 yards from the point from which the troops fired, and invisible to them. The scheme was that the village was held by an invading enemy.

SAVED BY THE KNEIPP CURE.

A disciple of Kneipp, who taught the curative effects of walking barefoot on the grass, started out shortly after midnight on a recent rainy morning to take the cure in Tompkins Square park.

Though he had a gold watch and a good-sized "wad" in his pockets, he wore an old slouch hat and rough-looking clothes.

As he was nearing the park in one of the streets running to it from the south he suddenly found himself facing a pistol in the hands of a man who apparently had sprung from nowhere.

"Fork over your"—the robber started to say, but stopped. "Why you ain't got any shoes!" he disgustingly exclaimed.

"Ain't got any money to buy any, you see."

But he was talking to the air. The thug had vanished.—New York Mail.

CAUTIONAL.

"Well, sir," said Mabel's father after Algy had asked for the maiden's hand, "she tells me she loves you; but do you think you can afford to pay for all the little luxuries she is accustomed to?"

"Why, yes—that is, if she'll do without the necessities, I can," said Algy.—Judge's Library.

EXPLAINED.

He—They say women's feet are growing larger.

She—That's because we're learning how to put them down.

SUITABLE REGRET.

"I'm sorry such a good fellow as Pat should get in a hole."

"Yes; it is a pity such a broth of a boy should be in the soup."
